Col. W. H. Cornwell, A. Huenisch, D. W. Kirkland and H. H. Carter were passengers by the City of Peking last evening for the Orient.

It is understood that the Chamber of Commerce and the Planters' Association have decided to instruct their attorney, W. A. Kinney, to return, as there is no further use for him at Washington.

Only two more days in which to get bargains at L. B. Kerr's Bankrupt Sale. Examine the list of prices in his advertising space in this issue and don't fail to see the goods, the values are such as will not be repeated.

Lying in State.

The body of the late Princess Kaiulani was lying in state at her late residence at Aiehaue yesterday, and a large number of persons paid their respects to the deceased chiefess.

During the afternoon the Government band played appropriate music. Mr. Cleghorn, the father of the late Princess, saw a few personal friends, and the friends of Kaiulani held solemn vigil over her remains. The Queen Dowager was in the death room for some time and the young Princes were in constant attendance.

On Saturday the body of the High Chiefess will lie in state in Kawaiahao Church, when the Hawaiians will gather and bewail their loss. On Sunday the funeral will take place, conducted by those who now own that which once was the spirit-casket of Kaiulani.

A Resolution.

The Woman's Board, mourning with the nation the death of Princess Kaiulani, has adopted the following:

Resolved, That we shall ever keep in mind the self-possession and tact shown by the late Princess Kaiulani during the trying days of her history, her social graces, and her personal charm. In her death her people have lost their noblest representative, their helper and guide.

A Card of Thanks.

The family of the late lamented W. J. Maxwell take this method of returning their most sincere thanks to all those who pecuniarily aided them in their sad bereavement.

The old-fashioned dictionaries derive "luncheon" from "nunchion" or "noonshun"—the refreshment taken at noon, when laborers withdraw from work to shun the sun.

Romance in High Life.

The English peerage is always to the front with scandals and romances but the latest one savors of such strange incidents that facts become stranger than fiction.

A few months ago an elderly organ grinder was parading the streets of London.

On his organ was a placard in print with the following inscription: "I am Viscount Hinton, who have to grind an organ for a living, having been disowned by my father through no fault of my own."

The organ grinder claimed to be the son of Earl Poulett, the oldest son of whom is by courtesy, Viscount Hinton. Last month the Earl died and the old story was brought up and is now the choice tale in the English papers.

The late Earl was a harum-scarum young fellow many years ago. On his way to England from India he made a bet with a friend on board the vessel that he would marry the first girl he met on the soil of England. The bet was taken and Lord Poulett won it by marrying the daughter of the pilot whom he met on landing. The courtship lasted a few weeks but unfortunately it took only six months before a son was born, and that son claimed to be Viscount Hinton although physically he could be no relation to the noble Earl.

Lord Poulett fired his wife and the "viscount" out, and married a couple of times again. The son of his "pilot wife" played an organ when the Earl died last month and he now claims the title and the entailed property. Son by wife No. 3 also claims to be Lord Poulett but he has the advantage of having inherited the personal property of the Poulett's which is figured at $3,000,000.

An organ grinding peer, with a seat in the House of Lords, will be something unique. It is for the Lords themselves, however, to say who the next Peer is, and it is safe to predict that the fellow with the dollars has a better show than the previous fellow with the organ.

PAUL NEUMANN HERE.

Did Not Plead the Cause of ex-Queen Liliuokalani at Washington.

Paul Neumann, who was Attorney-General of Hawaii under King Kalakaua, has arrived from Washington, D. C., and is registered at the Palace with his wife. Mr. Neumann denies emphatically that he had anything to do with the presentation of the claims of Liliuokalani to the United States Government.

"I went to Washington," said he "on private business, and incidentally to be admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States, as I wished to be the first one from the Islands to be so honored. I have been a practitioner since 1884 in all the courts of California. As far as the claims of Liliuokalani are concerned, I had nothing to do with them whatever, as I do not consider that she has any. She may have a claim in equity, but it is shadowy. When King Kamehameha III divided the allodial lands between himself, the nobles and the people, he established a use for the reigning sovereign of the income of the crown lands. If that use lapsed by reason of the non-existence of any one who was included under its terms the property devoted to that use would naturally revert to the lineal descendants of Kamehameha III, of which Queen Liliuokalani is not one. Her dethronement simply made the use lapse and there is no beneficiary to take it. "As to annexation, I can say that the small minority of the natives who were opposed to it are now in its favor. I confidently believe that annexation will benefit the Islands much more than the United States." —S. F. Call.
